There is a wide diversity of opinion as to bringing on another state-wide prohibition fight next year. In some quarters such a contest is advocated as soon as possible. Others think that two years would be plenty soon. The success of statewide prohibition in the West and South has led temperance people to think that in two years there should be a nationwide amendment submitted. Most every Southern state as well as those in the West, with one or two exceptions, would return a heavy majority for prohibition. Whether the amendment was favorable at that time or not it is held that the campaign would be one of education and only pave the

The recent decision of the Supreme Court rejecting the application for a recount of the ballots on the grounds that no law has been passed giving power for this purpose, means that the new legislature must provide for this. It will also mean that certain legislation must be repealed and other sections made more clear as to the powers of the secretary of state. In fact our election legislation needs revision. As it stands the political party in power can conduct elections from a selfish standpoint. There is more authority centered in the secretary of state than with the governor and if the recent election means anything there should be some changes that would permit court review of the secretary of state's decisions.

Those who have not favored the new school law that provided for a county superintendent, supervision, etc., will find no consolation in published reports that the incoming governor wants no change in the school law at this time. Being a college man of wide experience, Mr. Willis, is inclined to favor the county supervision plan. It is very probable that the legislature will act in accordance with his views.

way for victory that much sooner.

The members of congress that always provide revenue for the armor plate factories, powder concerns and companies furnishing war and navy supplies have now begun the annual cry of the condition of the army and navy. The attitude of some of these men, particularly Representatives Gardner, one is inclined to believe that these men must be on the pay roll or such corporations. It is true enough that we have a larger army and also a larger navy, but it is not the navy that is the trouble. There was time enough for that after common sense judgment. People should not overlook the fact that many of the congressmen as well as certain newspapers have a direct interest in concerns that furnish war and navy supplies.

Still Carry Boar's Head at Christmas

THE medieval Yuletide custom of carrying a boar's head in procession to the Christmas banquet was once common in England. Today it is confined to Queen's college, Oxford, and one of two baronial houses.

The reason for the custom surviving at Queen's is, according to tradition, on account of a valorous deed performed centuries ago by a Queen's scholar. He was walking in the fields studying his Aristotle when a wild boar rushed at him open mouthed. With great presence of mind the student crammed the book down the animal's throat, and it was thus choked to death with philosophy; hence the survival of the boar's head at the college of which this bold scholar was a member.

No fitter setting for a ceremony that quaint and timeless, carrying the boar's head, than the college of which this bold scholar was a member.

The procession of the boar's head is formed up at the buttery. At its head walks the scholar, a former scholar of the college. Next comes the boar's head. This is borne on a silver salver upon the shoulders of two stalwart servants. The great head presents a quaint and timeless appearance, being surrounded by a glittering and jeweled crown and decked with frills of gilded bay and rosemary. Between the tusks is placed a golden orb. Flanking the orb are golden devices are fixed in the head.

Immediately behind the great dish comes the college organist, wearing the brilliant robes of an Oxford doctor of music, and followed by his supplied choir of men and boys.

Meanwhile the provost of the college, standing on the dais at the end of the hall in the midst of the princely and stately Latin grace, after which the dinner will be served in the cloisters upon a trumpet. Then with stately pomp the procession slowly advances from the buttery, through the cloisters and into the great dining hall, and the scholar sings the proclamation.

The boar's head is hand bear 1. Decked with bay and rosemary. And I pray you, my masters, be merry. Then the choir sings in harmonious chorus the curious old Latin carol: Quis estis in convivia. Capti sunt a deforis. Reddens laudes Domino.

By the time the carol is finished the procession has reached the dais, and the boar's head is deposited on the high table. Then the provost, or, in his absence, the senior official of the college who is present, removes the legs, which are used year after year and are of considerable antiquity, and presents to each of the principal guests a portion of the gilded evergreens. The remainder is eagerly scrambled up by the other guests.

After this prelude the dinner is served as ordinarily was the most valuable and antique silver plate and pewer are used. Special sauces are served with the meats, and home brewed ale and the college's own special beer, a liquor of great potency, are served in the valuable old tankards.

WARNS AGAINST CAPTIOUS CENSOR

Films Should Not Express What Narrow People Demand

NO RESTRAINT PREFERABLE

National Board of Censorship Was Organized to Strike a Middle Course Between Those Who Would Apply a Puritanical Standard and Those Who Would Kill a Huge Industry by Too Much License.

[By Frederic C. Howe, Commissioner of Immigration, New York]

Frederic C. Howe, Director of the People's Institute and Commissioner of Immigration, New York, made a memorable speech before the International Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, recently. In the light of the agitation that is now going on throughout the country with regard to the censoring of motion pictures and since Mr. Howe made in Ohio in an official capacity, as State Senator and Tax Commissioner in the City of Cleveland, thus gaining a thorough knowledge of politics and conditions in that State, his remarks are interesting. In part they are as follows:

"There are two types of people interested, outside of the trade, in this industry. There are those who would censor it very severely; a limited number, for there are a few people, strange to say, who still would suppress the motion picture show entirely, just as they would suppress other forms of amusements which they don't particularly want. It is represented by the type that would stop the sale of newspapers on Sunday, that would close the drug store. They want to suppress anything that they don't like. But that group is very small. Then, there is a group that is very close to it, and which is making the motion picture a very circumscribed thing."

"And there is another group, very extreme, who insist that there should be no censorship whatever; that the motion picture show should be as free as the press, as free as drama, and that there is no justification of censorship of any kind. Now, personally, I have a good deal of sympathy with the man who has that view; it shows that a man has thought into the subject, who sees danger in official interference in the expression of art, of the theatre, who sees that the idea might be extended much further. I have much more sympathy with a man who advocates no censorship than one who is extremely severe in his censorship."

"The National Board of Censorship was organized five years ago on the assumption that there was a middle course, that there was some place for the disinterested public in connection with the motion picture show, and I think they justify the organized Board of Censorship; justify their view on two grounds: One is the large number of children that attend the picture shows—and society has a right to protect children even if it has no right to protect grown-up; and the second is the fact that there are one or two men in every town who do things to injure the whole town. The National Board is organized on the assumption that there should be some way to protect the community against these."

"At one time the Federal Government proposed to have a voice in this work of censorship. They wished to have five commissioners, each of whom would receive a substantial salary and who would be permitted to appoint deputies. These commissioners would have no right to control the action of cities or states. There would still be the question of State censorship and local censorship. I would be sorry to see the passage of any Federal Censorship Bill, not only because I am connected with the National Board but also because my interest in this whole subject is the same interest that I have in the movement for the censorship of the free press, for the censorship of the theatre, for the censorship of any other great means of education or art. Such censorship, to my mind, is fraught with great danger. There is the political danger that the censorious to me as the danger from cramping, from interfering with the freedom of this art, for wherever censorship has been established it has had the effect of paralyzing men's minds."

"I think these dangers are overlooked by a large part of our people, especially by that group that goes to our State legislature; who were active in Washington before Congress, endeavoring to pass a measure that will limit, confine and make the motion picture show express not what it wants to express, but what a group of people think it ought to express. And I think it is our business, if we believe in freedom, if we believe in this instrument, to bring it to the attention of Congress and State Legislatures and City Legislatures that there is one of the greatest agencies of happiness and education that this wonderful century has produced. My interest in the National Board of Censorship and my interest in this whole question, my interest in seeing this great agency develop itself with just as much freedom as is consistent with one or two limitations mentioned is based on this fact."

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By H. O. Smith, Acting Director Sunday School Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR DECEMBER 6

CHRIST RISEN FROM THE DEAD.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:1-8; Matt. 28:1-10.

The death of Christ made a profound impression, Luke 24:48. Joseph, who had been a secret disciple, obtained the body and gave it burial, Mark 15:42-47. In the lesson selected for today we have, first, Mark's record of the discovery of the resurrection by the women, and second, Matthew's record of how his enemies dealt with that fact.

1. The Resurrection Morn, Mark 16:1-8. The Sabbath ended at sundown and the shops were then opened. Mary Magdalene then purchased spices that they might anoint the dead body of Jesus. They may have paid the tomb a visit late on Saturday, see Matt. 28:1-10. Standing outside the tomb, "while it was yet dark," John 20:1, they came to the tomb to perform their last service of gratitude and love. He had no need of this service, Matt. 16:21; 20:19; however, it was acceptable and they were rewarded by receiving the first glimpse of the risen Lord.

Women's Love Genuine. The reason they did not expect to see a risen Jesus was in their failure to listen to and ponder on his words. The men also failed to comprehend the note of his resurrection which he so frequently sounded. Indeed, the report of these same women by these men considered "as idle tales," Luke 24:11. The women appear in a better light than the men in this story. The women, especially Mary Magdalene, loved much because he had done so much for them. The extent and the genuineness of their affection is found in that they went to the tomb to serve Jesus when apparently hope had died. Faith was blighted, 1 Cor. 13:8. Their visit was the fulfillment of their ministry of love, yet it reveals the darkness of their minds. This was common to all of his followers.

Approaching the tomb they are confronted by a new difficulty—What shall they do with the stone? The weight of the stone is significant—"Looking up, they see that the stone is rolled back," Am. R. V. This undoubtedly refers to the situation of the tomb and their approach thereto, yet the fact remains that "looking up" most of our difficulties are removed. Let us be constantly "looking unto him." It has been suggested that God rolled away the stone, not that Jesus might get out, but rather that the women might get in. Mary found two angels sitting, one at the head and one at the foot, where the body had lain, John 20:11, and the two disciples to whom she reported found the linen cloth and the napkin and "believed," John 20:2-9. The women were overwhelmed with perplexity and, like Peter and John, "knew not the Scripture that he must rise again from the dead." The angelic message, "He is risen; he is not here," was a sounding forth of a message as great and as glorious as that sounded by the angels on the night of his birth.

Such experience and such knowledge entails a definite burden of responsibility, therefore the logical message and command of verse seven. This is also in accord with the Savior's last earthly message, Mark 16:15; Matt. 28:19-20. It is natural for us to linger in silent meditation at the place of our greatest revelation or of our deepest soul experiences, but these women are urged to "go quickly."

The message of salvation is too important to brook any delay.

Spread False Tale.

11. The Watch at the Sepulcher, Matt. 27:62-66 and 28:11-15. Evidently the manner of his death and his reported prophecies as to the resurrection made an impression upon the enemies of Jesus. This guard is an expression of the ultimate antagonism of the priests and rulers. As this, the morn of the first day of the week, approached the guard saw the vision of the angel and in its presence he was as dead men. When later they recovered they hastened into the city and reported to the priests the fact of the coming of the angel and that the stone, upon which the seal rested, had been removed. Bribed, they spread abroad the tale that the disciples had stolen his body. The falseness of such a tale is evidenced by the fact that the rank and file had not the temerity to make such a claim today.

The resurrection, as Paul affirms, is the declaration that Jesus is the Son of God. It is a vindication of his supremacy and of the supremacy of the spiritual over the natural. We do well to emphasize his birth, and to dwell much upon his death, yet both of these have no essential value apart from the resurrection. Apart from this and the cross is no more than the tragic and awe-inspiring end of a life that failed. Connecting the cross with this demands that every thoughtful man should study it carefully. The resurrection demonstrates that he finished the work of redemption.

CHRISTMAS AGAIN!

Once more the hallowed, gracious Christmas time is upon the earth. At last the long year of toil over tools and arts and industries is all but ended. The Christmas festival, dedicated to happiness and good will, has come. This morning the whole city has awakened to quadruple joy. The very atmosphere of our earth is rosy, stained with the rich colors of the heart. All windows are bright with holly and evergreen. Parents have discovered that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Joy runs riot in the heart of little children. Youth overflows with animal spirits. Suddenly the aged have at their years and become young again. Before the light had fully dawned the carols had begun to be heard in the streets. And every passing hour will behold larger multitudes thronging to these temples of the soul. All feel that flowers are sweetest enough, no gifts rich enough for the Christmas day. For once all strife and enmity have disappeared from the market place.—Rev. Newell D. Hillie, D. D.

THE BIG CHRISTMAS

THE trusty magnate was breakfasting sitting opposite his handsome, brightly looking wife. The room was done in oak and tapestry, and in the great fireplace a fire of Yule logs burned. He was iron gray, thin, tired looking, with an occasional attractive twinkle in his eye. She was inclined to be stout; her hair was snow white, elaborately dressed. A shadowy sweetness lingered in the corners of her mouth.

"Do you remember one Christmas day, so many years ago," she questioned him, "when we were so poor we had no dinner?"

"Clearly. And now we have no digestion," he remarked. "And one Christmas when you were so ill and we were in a hotel and so uncomfortable?"

"He nodded cheerfully. "You are forgetting the big Christmas," he remarked. "We've had so many of them together," she said, "it makes me feel quite old and a little bit sad."

"Think back," he said, "to one Christmas night that we were together in a sleigh on the old mill road. There were stars in the sky, and it was cold. You were snuggling close to me."

"Why, Harry, we weren't engaged then."

"You were one of those snugglesome girls, Mary. I repeat, you were crowding me some, but I didn't mind it. You wore a red knitted hood tied under your chin and a—tip-top—yes, that's it, a tip-top little fur with little black spots. It was a cut."

"Ermine, you foolish boy."

"And suddenly we bumped over something and you were scared, and the next thing—you had kissed me."

"It was you that kissed me. The idea—why?"

"How could I? I was driving. You deliberately kissed me, Mary. Don't deny it after all these years."

"I don't remember it, Harry."

"I remember it distinctly, for I had always wanted to; but, being a modest youth, I was afraid. But that delightful bump in the—"

"I dropped the reins and asked you to marry me. You said yes. You remember now, don't you?"

She was blushing faintly, and the shadows that had been dimples deepened at her lips. She nodded her head. "The horse jumped. Over went the sleigh, and we tumbled into a big snow drift, not quite knowing what was the matter. The horse, being the one lively stable hand in the place, was used to lovers, so he just stood still, looking back at us while I righted the cutter and lifted you in. We were the happiest two in the world, weren't we?"

"Yes," she said softly. "That was the big Christmas, Mary."

Suit to enjoin a neighbor, Mrs. Nanette Ross, from trespassing on their property on North Gallows street, was brought in common pleas court today by Frank and Leola Tarbox. A temporary restraining order was allowed by Judge Kyle. The plaintiffs say that although they have been in undisputed possession of the property for a number of years the defendant persists in trespassing upon the property, releasing her poultry on it daily, throwing water upon it, destroying the shrubs and rose bushes, and has dug a hole on the property and placed a post in it. Marcus Shoup, attorney—Gazette.

MR. B. M. KERNER has purchased the house and lot on Church street belonging to Mr. William Boase.

The Cedarville Electric Light Company, who furnish electric current for the village of Yellow Springs, are pushing their work on the new power house as rapidly as possible. In a letter received this week by the Board of Trustees of Public Affairs, they stated they "are rushing matters as fast as possible, and when completed we will have as fine a plant as any where in the state." This is good news for the people of Yellow Springs—Yellow Springs News.

The foot and mouth disease was reported in a herd of cattle belonging to W. F. Andrews, on the Jamestown place. A steer was found dead several days ago, but according to latest reports there was no trace of the disease found. The animal died from some other cause.

The flour mill and elevator at Treble's burned last Thursday afternoon with a loss of $40,000. Hundreds of bushels of wheat and many barrels of flour were consumed. The insurance was only $25,000.

Mr. Ralph Kennon returned to the O. S. U., Monday.

The quarantine being lifted in the county resulted in many horses being shipped from here last Saturday and most every day so far this week. The commission men and packers in the cities have been unable to handle the shipments and as a result the price has dropped somewhat. It is expected that things will become normal next week.

The Ideal Comedy Company has billed the opera house for next week.

South Charleston has on of the most modern picture show houses in the state. It was just opened last Thursday and is a credit to the town. Mr. Foster Houston erected the building on the site of a former dilapidated structure. This village to be in line with towns of our size should have a modern picture play house.

Mr. Fred Weimer accompanied his sons, Wayne and Norbert Weimer, to Columbus, Monday, where the boys joined the Ohio delegation to Washington on the Corn Boys' Excursion. The only other boys to go from this county were Roy and A. B. Lewis, of Jamestown. Without question the Corn Boys' Excursion is the greatest educational treat ever offered in this state. These boys will see and experience the workings of the government, besides many other attractions that hundreds of older citizens never expect to see.

The county commissioners have selected Mr. and Mrs. Matt S. Smith and superintendent and matron of the county home to become effective January 1, when Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Sutton resign. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were formerly connected with the institution.

THE CHRISTMAS THOUGHT

Ideas on Christmas giving are rapidly changing among the sensible. Those who think as they give are looking for a year-round service as the important thing.

In a week of shopping, with all its strain, you will not find a better gift than a year's subscription to The Youth's Companion. It offers its service, its clean entertainment, its suggestiveness week after week; and the end of the year, which finds many a gift in the attic, dust-covered and forgotten, brings The Companion again, with all the charm of last Christmas.

No American monthly at any price offers the same amount of reading, and none can offer better quality. Less than four cents a week provides this best of Christmas gifts—$2.00 a year. If you subscribe now, all the remaining issues of the year will be sent free, and The Companion Home Calendar. A copy of the Calendar is also sent to those who make a gift subscription. Send for sample copies, and the Forecast for 1916.

We notice by the national Tribune that Dr. S. G. Grant, a prominent Topeka, Kan., physician, known to many here, has purchased a lot along the Boulevard at St. Cloud, Florida, a fashionable winter resort, and will erect a handsome home. Dr. Stewart has decided to make St. Cloud his permanent home.

While hearing a case in Common Pleas Court Thursday, Judge Kyle had to leave the bench and separate Judge Shoup and Ed. Schaner. The latter was a witness in the case of Fyles vs. John Henry, all Yellow Springs people, in offering his testimony about the ownership of a bolt made a statement that Judge Shoup resented and considered personal. It at blows from each went wild and for a time friends lined up on both sides for battle.

Miss Louisa Smith has given up her Ceramic class with the Girls' Friendly Society in Xenia and leaves Friday evening for Chicago where she will do some special work in a studio in that city.

Mrs. Sarah Barber has been in very poor health for several days.

Mr. C. W. Minor and wife spent Thanksgiving and the week and with their daughter, Mrs. Charles Brotherton and family, of Dayton.

Dorchester House, the magnificent mansion that was occupied by Whiteley Reid while he was American Ambassador to Great Britain, has been transformed into a military hospital, and is probably the most luxurious of its kind in existence.

Down stairs on the first floor the famous ballroom has been converted into waiting room for convalescents. Other highly-decorated apartments where balls, suppers and big receptions were given are filled now with bed screens and medicine tablets, but will become the dormitories for wounded to be sent there after a few days' preliminary treatment at a nursing home further down Park Lane, which is attended by Sir Alfred Fripp, surgeon in ordinary to the King, and his sister.

Think Mistletoe Brings Trouble.
In many parts of the United Kingdom, the silver berries and the gray-green leaves of the mistletoe are looked upon as anything but an emblem of good cheer. On the contrary, the plant is regarded with dread as being the bringer of ill luck and the sign of ill omen. This superstition exists both in Devonshire and in Ireland, and, strange to say, in neither of these places does the plant flourish.

The Christmas Dance.
When grandma danced the minuet some sixty years ago
The stately couples often met
Beneath the mistletoe.

An old observer knows.
For mortals act about the same
Beneath the mistletoe.

SUPREME COURT DAYS
NO ACCOUNT AND SALOONS MAY OPEN.

Suit was brought following the election asking the Supreme Court to order a recount in the four largest counties. The wets held that there was no law for a recount even though the election officials were compelled to hold the ballots six days. The court held that legislation was necessary along this line before a recount could be ordered.

This means that saloons can open on 46 of the 48 dry counties and the Home Rule amendment went into effect Thursday.

Several suits have also been filed from various counties by defeated Republican candidates contesting the seats of successful Democratic opponents. These suits are useless now according to the recent decision. The House, which is Republican, can hear charges and determine who is entitled to a seat and this decision is final. In recent years several contests have been heard by the House, but regardless of the fact that one party or the other might have a majority and was able to unseat some member, nothing of the kind was ever done. It is a dangerous precedent for either party to ask Congress to establish the dry or wet could unseat members and seat their friends and thus deprive counties of their choice for representatives.

Yellow Springs is very much enthused over the test of an auto fire engine at that place last week. Several trial runs were made and the engine did not move far from the fire. The News says that the council will probably purchase the machine. South Charleston needs a similar machine, but needs a waterworks plant worse, and there is every evidence that the people are about in the proper frame of mind to vote for a bond issue for that purpose.---Sentinel.

THEATRE NOTES

Tuesday evening, December 8th, the Fairbanks Theatre will offer George M. Cohan's latest farce "SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPAPE". It is the unexpected surprise in this farce that furnished the appeal which succeeded in focusing the attention of New York and Chicago theatregoers for one year and six months respectively on this wonderful play of fun and mystery. In "SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPAPE" Mr. Cohan has mixed melodrama and farce with a deftness that is as delightful as it is thrilling, with the result that his audiences are held at concert pitch, so real is the tension sustained during the rapid action of the mystery farce. An admirable cast, headed by Cyril Scott, succeeds in giving forceful expression to the story, into which Mr. Cohan has mixed so much of his own virility that it whizzes along at top speed from prologue to epilogue. The charm of the piece lies in the naturalness of the characters introduced, and the whitest humor of the piece, to say nothing of curiously delightful love story it presents which makes this latest Cohan production one of the most interesting seen on the American stage in years.

Friday and Saturday, December 11-12th, the Fairbanks Theatre will offer the dramatized version of that delightful little story "THE CALLING OF DAN MATTHEWS." seldom has a character in fiction made as many friends as the hero of this story and readers of this "best seller" will be as anxious to follow his fortunes in the play as they were in the story. A good production and a clever company is said to be interpreting the piece and visitors to the Fairbanks will be assured of a good entertainment.

Rejoiced in the Prospect James, who is not a natural student, one day was observed to seem very happy about something. A sympathetic neighbor inquired the reason for his joy. "Oh," explained James, just entering third grade, "I asked pay this morning if I had to go to college, and he said if I stayed as stupid as I am now it would be a waste, and teacher says I'm naturally stupid, so I only have 12 more years to go to school!"
